(4) The reservation of a name for an association, proposed association or incorporated association, as the case may be, does not of itself entitle the association or proposed association to be incorporated under the reserved name, or entitle the incorporated association to change its name to the reserved name.

(3) For the purposes of this Division, a contract may be ratified by an incorporated association in the same manner as a contract may be entered into by an incorporated association under section 47, and section 47 has effect as if—

- (a) a reference in that section to entering into a contract included a reference to ratifying a contract; and the other party or each of the other parties to the contract may, subject to subsections (5) and (6), recover from the person or from any one or more of the persons who purported to execute the contract on behalf of the non-existent incorporated association an amount of damages equivalent to the amount of damages for which the party could have obtained a judgment against the incorporated association if—

- (d) where the association has been incorporated as referred to in paragraph (b)—the association had ratified the contract pursuant to subsection 43 (1);

and the contract had been discharged by reason of a breach of the contract constituted by the refusal or failure of the incorporated association to perform any obligation under the contract.

(3) Where—

- (a) proceedings are brought to recover damages under subsection (2) in relation to a contract purported to have been entered into by a non-existent incorporated association; and
- (b) the association has been incorporated;

- (d) the other party or any one or more of the other parties to the contract brings or bring proceedings against the incorporated association for damages for breach of the contract;

the court may, subject to subsection (7), if it thinks it just to do so, order the person or any one or more of the persons who purported to execute the contract on behalf of the incorporated association to pay to the person or persons by whom the proceedings are brought the whole or a specified portion of any damages that the incorporated association has been, or is, found liable to pay to the person or persons by whom the proceedings are brought.

(6) Where a person purports, whether alone or together with another person or persons, to execute a contract on behalf of a non-existent incorporated association, the other party to the contract, or any of the other parties to the contract, may, by writing signed by the party or parties, as the case requires, consent to the first-mentioned person or persons being exempted from any liability in respect of the contract.

(7) Where a person has, in accordance with subsection (6), consented to the exemption of another person from liability in respect of a contract that the other person purported to execute on behalf of a non-existent incorporated association—

- (a) notwithstanding subsection (2), the first-mentioned person is not entitled to recover damages from that other person in relation to that contract; and any liabilities to which the person who purported to execute the first-mentioned contract on behalf of the non-existent incorporated association is subject, by virtue of this Division, in relation to the first-mentioned contract (including liabilities under an order made by a court pursuant to this Division) shall be taken to have been discharged.

Substituted rights and liabilities

46. Any rights or liabilities of a person under this Division (including rights or liabilities under an order made by a court under this Division) in relation to a contract shall be taken to be substituted for any rights that the person would have, or any liabilities to which the person would be subject, as the case may be, apart from this Division.

Post-incorporation contracts

47. (1) A person acting with the express or implied authority of an incorporated association may enter into, vary or discharge a contract in the name of or on behalf of the association as if the contract were entered into, varied or discharged by a natural person.
