SCHEDULE

Public Place Names (Deakin) Determination 2013 (No 1) Division of Deakin

NAME	ORIGIN	SIGNIFICANCE
Rosemary Dobson	Rosemary Dobson Bolton, AO	Poet, author, editor

Park (christened, Rosemary de Brissac Dobson)

(1920-2012)

Poet, author, editor and resident of Deakin

Rosemary Dobson won the Patrick White award for literature in 1984 and was appointed an Officer of the Order of Australia in 1987. She was awarded the Australia Council's Writer's Emeritus Award and an honorary doctorate in letters from Sydney University in 1996. Rosemary was patron of the ACT Writers Centre and a longstanding supporter of poetry and literature in general in the ACT. Her poem Canberra Morning, prompted by an experience in Deakin, was published in her collection Over the Frontier in 1978. Rosemary published 16 volumes of verse, from In a Convex Mirror (1944) to Rosemary Dobson Collected (2012). The family settled in Deakin in 1971 when Rosemary's husband Alec Bolton was appointed director of publishing at the National Library of Australia. In 1972 Alec founded Brindabella Press, at the family house in Deakin. The press published small editions of work by Australian writers, including Rosemary's Untold Lives: a sequence of poems, (1992).
